

MEDIA RELEASE

For immediate release

THE PARTNERSHIP FUELLING WORKPLACE AESTHETIC, COMMUNITY AND GROWTH.

WORK AESTHETIC - The relationship between Cor_so interior Architecture and CreativeCubes.Co is one that has resulted in a showcase of spaces demonstrating modernity at work, departing from the formerly scaffolded shared office concept into dedicated spaces of idea incubation, collaboration, community and growth.

It is a story founded on ideation cemented at 38,000 feet above ground, when CreativeCubes.Co Founder Tobi Skovron set his sights on bringing his LA inspired working philosophy back home to Australia and launch in Melbourne.

On teaming with Cor_so, a founding partnership emerged, resulting today in the unwavering interplay of contemporary function and creative form to produce award winning designs that have attracted some of Australia's most innovative companies, events and entrepreneurs.

The expansion of CreativeCubes.Co across key locations in Richmond, Hawthorn, South Melbourne, Carlton & Collingwood, have been impactful in enabling people to work in incredible spaces flexibly & locally.

"We knew Melbourne at the time was full of innovation and creativity, and that there was demand for a workspace that reflected the interests and visions of diverse and driven individuals," said Skovron.

"From the outset, our concept was embraced and looking back, it was because of a commitment to aesthetic, convenience and integration of technology at the epicentre of our flexible and evolving concept. All of this has enabled us to build an incredible community at scale"

It is design that has been a key point of focus since the inception of CreativeCubes.Co, with Skovron turning to a functional and aesthetic space suitable for all types of companies (Startups / Scaleups / SME and Enterprise / Large Corporates).

"The design of CreativeCubes.Co in Richmond, which is now mirrored across locations, has been key to the success of the concept to date," said Skovron. "We knew we needed something balanced and special so we contacted one of Melbourne's leading design firms in this space, Corso Interior Architecture. Joey Corso and his team just understood what we were trying to achieve from the outset and when the design was awarded Gold at the Melbourne Design Awards, we knew we were on the right path."

It is with a balanced approach to the interior design process that Corso developed the suite of CreativeCubes.Co designs. The focus was an end product that not only met the unique requirements to reflect the specific location, but through the development of spaces that constantly evolve to mirror the ever-growing community within the walls of these once dull and lifeless buildings.

“While CreativeCubes.Co are community-focused workspaces, the brief requires floorplans that encompass the right balance of desk and office spaces to ensure a feasible concept. But this imperative must not detract from the overarching vision to create community workspaces that offer opportunities to work independently and a central nexus for collaboration, networking and after-work social gatherings,” said Joey.

“So we have developed spaces that work to create flow throughout, where every desk and every workspace feels like it is important. Because that is what matters with this design, and we enjoy bringing it to life with CreativeCubes.Co.”

CreativeCubes.Co spaces offer private offices, meeting rooms (by the hour) coworking, shared office spaces, event space, Cafés, Yoga, wellness and Mindfulness spaces.

For more information and insights on the award winning creativecubes.co design, visit corsodesign.com.au

ENDS

For more information, or to arrange an interview, vision or photo opportunity with Toni Skovron of creativecubes.co or Joey Corso of Corso Interior Architecture, please contact:

Suzanne Tonks
Oliver & York Public Affairs
0488774438
s.tonks@oliverandyork.com.au
oliverandyork.com.au